rather than australians learning mandarin and other asian languages wouldn it be more useful for australia to teach asians the european languages of business.

yeah, but what does it mean? various interpretations follow below